

Philadelphia CENTER for the BOOK

2019-2020 PCB/FLP FREE WORKSHOP SERIES

Call for proposals

Deadline: May 15, 2019

Philadelphia Center for the Book (PCB) and the Art Department of the Free Library of Philadelphia (FLP) are looking for artists to give book or paper workshops to run at the FLP's Parkway Central Library during the school year 2019-2020. If you are interested, please send us a workshop proposal. Information is below.

- Workshops are held on Saturday mornings from 10-1 between September and May, at the Parkway Central branch of the Free Library.
- Workshops are capped at 15 participants.
- The workshops are free and open to the public and require registration. No previous experience should be necessary. If your workshop assumes some bookbinding or sewing experience, please mention that.
- PCB provides 12 sets of basic supplies (rulers, bone folders, brushes, scissors, xacto knives, awls, needles, linen thread, cutting mats, glue sticks, etc.).
- Instructors are compensated $250 for teaching the workshop. There is no additional compensation for materials, however we have a supply of paper, which can be cut to the needed size with advance notice.
- Workshops are promoted on the PCB and FLP websites, newsletters, and registration is managed through Eventbrite. Workshops typically fill within hours of opening registration.

Send your proposal to events@philadelphiacenterforthebook.org

Please include:
